On the right wing German battaine, streamed out of Fliain Wood to attack Freidment Farm, which stands midway between Chevregny and Hill 185. They were practically annihilated. It would seem difficult for the Germans to prevent the French from reaching the Oise Canal and the Allette River on this part of the front. The Chemin-des- said: Dames—the key of the whole section is now in great part in possession of the French. In several places they have even gone far beyond. It was the possession of this road which enabled the Germans to hold up the French advance for so long. Its capture alone shows the importance of the success gained by Gen. Nivelle in the battles of Saturday and Sunday.
